Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: On page 1, Line 15 and 2, Line 3 instead of "geological restriction" should be used 'geographical restriction'.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-3, 5-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ditzik (US patent No. 5,983,073).

As to claim 1, Ditzik teaches a notebook computer with a web pad equipped display (See Figs. 1-2, item 2, page 3, Col. 5, Lines 18-22), comprising; a base (cover assembly) unit (See Fig. 1, items 8,9 and 16, Col. 3, Lines 60-61); and a display is detachable from the base unit (item 10, Fig. 1) and can close to and open from the base unit when joined to the base unit (See Figs. 1-2, items 2, 8-10, 16, Col. 3, Lines 60-61), wherein the display comprises: a display panel (See Figs. 1-2, item 2, Col. 4, Lines 18-27), a system (main) bus including a PC Card interface which is electrically connected to the display panel (See Fig. 7, items 60, 44, 2, 9, 27, Col. 12, Lines 34-37); microprocessor (item 38 in Fig. 7, Col. 11, Line 48-49); a telecommunication device which is electrically connected to the main bus (See Fig. 7, items 53-54, 33, Col. 11, Lines 37-46).

Art Unit: 2673

Ditzik teaches a system (main) bus which is electrically connected to the display panel, microprocessor is situated on a system (main) bus and telecommunication device is electrically connected to a system (main) bus.

Ditzik does not show a motherboard which is electrically connected to the display panel, microprocessor is situated on the motherboard and telecommunication device is electrically connected to the motherboard.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to implement (rename) a system (main) bus as motherboard in Ditzik apparatus in order to combine office desktop and portable/mobile computing and communications applications (See Col. 2, Lines 36-37 in the Ditzik reference).

As to claim 2, modified Ditzik teaches a notebook computer, wherein the display is a webpad, since it has a display panel, motherboard, a microprocessor and telecommunication device (See Figs. 1-2, 7, items 4, 38, 60, 33, from Col. 11, Line 47 to Col. 12, Line 49).

As to claim 3, modified Ditzik teaches a memory unit which is situated on motherboard (See Fig. 7, items 40, 42, Col. 12, Lines 13-17).

As to claim 5, Ditzik teaches the display panel is a Liquid Crystal Display (LCD) (See Figs. 1-2, item 2, Col. 4, Lines 18-27).

As to claim 6, Ditzik teaches the telecommunication device is a wireless telecommunication device (See Figs. 1, 7, items 32, 53-54, 33, Col. 4, Lines 44-59 and Col. 12, Lines 50-67).

Art Unit: 2673

3. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ditzik as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Makinwa et al. (US Patent No. 5,750,939).

Ditzik teaches a stylus with which the user uses to touch the display panel to input control signals (See Fig. 2, item 7, Col. 5, Lines 18-22).

Ditzik does not show how to insert stylus into a stylus slot of the display.

Makinwa et al. teaches to insert stylus into a stylus slot of the display (See Fig. 6, items 102, 602, 604, Col. 5, Lines 41-55).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention to Makinwa et al. approach of storing stylus in Ditzik apparatus in order to store stylus in standby mode (See Col. 2, Lines 47-48 in the Makinwa et al. reference).

4. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ditzik as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Chen et al. (Pub. No.: US 2001/0030950 A1).

Ditzik does not show the transmission of the telecommunication device is a Bluetooth transmission.

Chen et al. teaches web pad has Bluetooth wireless interface (See Fig. 3, items 52, 56, page 5, paragraph 0067).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention to implement Chen et al. approach of Bluetooth interface in Ditzik apparatus in order to provide broadband communications to the home environment (See page 1, paragraph 0016 in the Chen et al. reference).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

The Kim (US Patent No. 5, 796, 576) reference discloses notebook computer having a hinge device enabling a display unit to be separable from a main body.

The Moriconi et al. (US Patent No. 6, 950,547 B2) reference discloses removable computer display interface.

The Kikins et al. (US Patent No. 6,523,079 B2) reference discloses micropersonal digital assistant.
